Lampas with satin ground worked in subtle pastel tones and with a design à la dentelle (in the lace style) typical of the late 17th century. The stylized fruit and flower motifs are organized in a network of lozenges, which are richly ornamented with leafy vines and other small elements. Also known as persiennes, the décor à dentelle are inspired by contemporary fashion and reflect the passion of the era for refined drawing style which can be found in 17th century clothing and in furnishings. The two matching background patterns: Corset and Guipure, delicately coordinate with this French Regency style lampas.
